Re: SB 89: Limiting Students' Education about Sexual Health and Sexually Transmitted Diseases
ACLU Analysis of Constitutional and Financial Issues

Dear Chair Kelly and Vice Chair Vazquez:

Thank you for the opportunity to provide testimony about Senate Bill 89, which interferes with the freedom and livelihood of Alaskan students and teachers. SB 89 singles out and discriminates against Alaskans engaged in legal, socially vital, and constitutionally protected conduct, at the expense of their rights under the Alaska and United States Constitutions. We urge the committee to not pass SB 89.

The American Civil Liberties Union of Alaska represents thousands of members and activists throughout Alaska who seek to preserve and expand the individual freedoms and civil liberties guaranteed by the Alaska and United States Constitutions. We engage in public advocacy and education to further those rights, and—when necessary—we litigate to protect them when they are attacked. In this context, we write to advise you that this bill unconstitutionally restricts people's freedoms. In addition to these constitutional harms, if this bill is enacted, Alaska will likely pay hundreds of thousands of dollars in attorney's fees and costs arising out of the seemingly inevitable constitutional challenges that will follow.

1. Section 5 of Senate Bill 89 discriminates against a group of people, violating their right to be treated equally.

Section 5 of Senate Bill 89 endangers the job of any public school teacher who provides instruction on human sexuality or sexually transmitted diseases if that teacher also works or volunteers for an abortion services provider. This interferes with Alaskans' right to be free of unequal treatment in the pursuit of their livelihood.

Section 5 identifies one group of people—employees and volunteers of abortion services providers—and prohibits them from providing instruction on two specific topics: human sexuality and sexually transmitted diseases. It disqualifies one group of people from a form of public employment available to everyone else, based solely on unrelated behavior conducted entirely outside the schoolhouse gates.

This implicates the Equal Protection Clause of the Alaska Constitution.<sup>1</sup> The right to engage in economic endeavor is an important constitutional right; accordingly, laws that interfere with that right—by treating some groups differently than others—are closely scrutinized by Alaska courts.<sup>2</sup>

But under the provisions of SB 89, any certified teacher of human sexual health would be forbidden from, for example, also teaching a class or even giving a single talk at any women’s health clinic or hospital where abortions are performed—whether as an employee or as a volunteer. Any tangential connection with a women’s health clinic or hospital where abortions are performed—even just stuffing envelopes—will automatically prevent Alaskans from teaching sexual health. This flat ban is triggered even if the teacher does not know that abortions are performed there: this will chill constitutionally protected behavior, as teachers of human sexual health become wary of accepting part-time work or even volunteer opportunities at women’s health clinics or hospitals.

By singling out people affiliated with abortion services providers and interfering with their livelihood, Alaska can expect SB 89 to be struck down.

2. SB 89’s chilling effect unconstitutionally restricts the right of free speech.

The corollary of how SB 89 discriminates against some teachers—those who also work or volunteer at abortion services providers—is how it will muzzle their constitutional right to free speech.

The right to speak free from government interference is enshrined in Article I of the Alaska Constitution<sup>3</sup> and in the First Amendment of the United States Constitution.<sup>4</sup> Both constitutions protect that right robustly; the Alaska Constitution is “at least as protective of expression as the First Amendment to the United States Constitution.”<sup>5</sup>

SB 89 undermines this fundamental right by jeopardizing a human sexual health teacher’s employment should that teacher volunteer to speak—outside of school and in a context wholly unrelated to that teacher's work—on behalf of an abortion services provider. This could take the form of educating women about their health, collecting signatures for a petition, or speaking at a rally. While the state may have a legitimate interest in what messages its employee teachers deliver at work, it may not legitimately censor what they say in their free time.

<sup>2</sup> See, e.g., State, By and Through Departments of Transp. and Lab. v. Enserch Alaska Const., Inc., 787 P.2d 624, 632 (Alaska 1989) (“the right to engage in an economic endeavor within a particular industry is an important right for state equal protection purposes.”) (internal quotations omitted).

<sup>3</sup> ALASKA CONST. art. I, § 5. (“Every person may freely speak, write, and publish on all subjects, being responsible for the abuse of this right.”).

As the U.S. Supreme Court observed in Pickering v. Board of Education, “[A] teacher’s exercise of his right to speak on issues of public importance may not furnish the basis for his dismissal from public employment.”<sup>6</sup> In State v. Haley, the Alaska Supreme Court similarly held that Alaska could not terminate a state employee for engaging in “speech focused entirely on public issues.”<sup>7</sup> In contrast, SB 89 would make that speech a reason to fire teachers, based solely on the point of view it represents.

3. The amount of taxpayer money Alaska has already spent defending unconstitutional laws like this possibly exceeds $1 million.

For the reasons described above, SB 89 is plainly unconstitutional. Passage of the bill would entangle Alaska in lengthy and complex—and avoidable—litigation. As Members of this Committee are aware, this would not be the first time, or even the second or third, that unconstitutional laws relating to abortion were struck down following prolonged and expensive litigation.

Alaska was recently embroiled in costly litigation over its attempt to impermissibly restrict the ability of low-income women to have abortions—the court struck down this restriction just over six months ago.<sup>8</sup> Such litigation has been costly for Alaska. When Alaska’s endeavor to eliminate Medicaid funding for medically-necessary abortions was struck down in State, Department of Health & Social Services v. Planned Parenthood of Alaska, Inc.,<sup>9</sup> Alaska wound up paying the plaintiffs $236,026.16 plus interest (or $321,141.37 plus interest in 2016 dollars).<sup>10</sup> Similarly, the unconstitutional Parental Consent Act spawned a lawsuit, State v. Planned Parenthood of Alaska, and multiple appeals, lasting over ten years.<sup>11</sup> Alaska paid the successful plaintiffs $278,127.42 (or $354,277.61 in 2016 dollars).<sup>12</sup>

And, any fair accounting of the total cost must include what Alaska had to pay its own attorneys and the other internal costs of defending those suits.

Such unnecessary drain of taxpayer resources would have been avoided had those respective Legislatures simply refrained from passing statutes, like SB 89, that are constitutionally infirm. Alaska has better uses to which it can direct the people's time and money than defending the constitutionality of squarely unconstitutional laws.

Conclusion

We appreciate the opportunity to share our concerns about SB 89 with the House Education Committee. We hope our testimony proves valuable to Members contemplating the bill's constitutional infirmities. Because of these deficiencies, we oppose this bill and urge the Committee to vote Do Not Pass.

We further hope that this Committee will refrain from approving legislation that squarely violates the Alaska and United States Constitutions and would entangle Alaska in expensive, time-consuming, and needless litigation.

Thank you for considering our testimony. Please let us know if we may answer any questions.

Sincerely,

Joshua A. Decker

CASE NO. 3AN-97-6014 CI

ORDER AND DECISION

This matter is before the court on plaintiffs' Motion for Attorney Fees. Defendant does not oppose an award of reasonable attorney fees, but disputes the reasonableness of the fees sought. Plaintiffs seek $148,692.70 in fees.

ANALYSIS

A prevailing public interest litigant is normally entitled to full reasonable attorney's fees. Dansereau v. Ulmer, Slip Op. No. 4962 at p. 2 (Alaska April 3, 1998). Here, it is undisputed that the plaintiffs are prevailing public interest litigants. The amount and reasonableness of the fee award is to be determined on the facts of the case, and should be evaluated according to the twelve factors set forth in Johnson v. Georgia Highway Express, Inc., 488 F.2d 714, 717-19 (5th Cir. 1974). Hickel v. Southeast Conference, 868 P.2d 919, 924 (Alaska 1994).

The defendant, without citing the Johnson factors, asserts several reasons why the requested fees are unreasonable. This opinion first addresses defendant's arguments and then addresses the Johnson factors.

A. DEFENDANT'S ARGUMENTS

Complexity

The State notes that this court must consider the complexity of the case in determining reasonable fees and asserts that this case was not complex. This court respectfully disagrees with defendant's characterization of the case.

This case was not like most other civil cases. First, the lawsuit raised a constitutional question of first impression for Alaska. Due to its nature, this case required substantial work to assimilate the arguments and evidence necessary to support the requests for injunctive relief and for summary judgment, and to oppose the two motions to dismiss.<sup>1</sup> Although the arguments and the facts supporting them may have been similar, each application for relief required a different analysis. Second, this case involved Concerned Alaska Parents ("CAP") as amicus curiae.<sup>2</sup> CAP presented numerous complex issues of its own to which plaintiffs had to respond. This court concludes that this was a complex case.

<sup>1</sup> Since this case was brought prior to the Alaska Supreme Court decision in Valley Hospital Association v. Mat-Su Coalition, 948 P.2d 963 (Alaska 1997), it was necessary that the plaintiffs draw substantially on federal law as well as analogous state law.

<sup>2</sup> Although CAP was not allowed to intervene as a party, CAP did much more than file a brief as amicus curiae.

Inadequate Support for Request

Defendants challenge that part of plaintiffs' fees request related to work done by attorneys Ms. Schleuss and Ms. Strout on the ground that plaintiffs failed to sufficiently support that part of the request. Since plaintiffs have now provided an affidavit by Ms. Schleuss in support of her fees, I find this argument is now moot as to her fees. As to Ms. Strout's total fees of $700, I find that Ms. Bamberger's affidavit satisfactorily supports this part of plaintiffs' request.

Unrelated Work

Defendants challenge some of the fees on the ground that they represent work unrelated to this action.

Defendants describe Ms. Bamberger's communications with counsel in 97-6019, the concurrent challenge to the partial birth abortion statute, as coordination by the attorneys of their cases which should be uncompensated in this matter. I find that proper representation in a lawsuit includes consulting with counsel in 97-6019, as well as obtaining a copy of the transcript of the TRO ruling in that matter. Further, I find that three telephone conversations to accomplish this purpose was reasonable.

CAP

Defendant argues that it should not be required to pay the fees associated with opposing motions or other arguments asserted by CAP. This argument also fails. First, I find that to rule as defendant requests would result in apportionment by issue, which is prohibited. Dansereau at 5. Further, this court concludes that the State benefited from CAP's participation as one would benefit from having co-counsel. In this case, CAP was not a neutral "friend of the court." Rather, CAP's position was very much aligned with the State's in arguing that the statute was constitutional. CAP, in this case, supplemented the State's briefing and presented contentions and arguments strengthening the State's case. Accordingly, I find that the State is liable for fees incurred in responding to CAP's briefs.

Duplicative or Unnecessary Work

Defendant asserts that the plaintiffs' attorneys necessarily duplicated each others efforts or engaged in unnecessary work. In support of its argument, defendant relies heavily upon the number of hours each attorney worked on any given product, not on the specifics of what each attorney was doing. For instance, where three, or even four attorneys coordinated briefing or other efforts, defendant concludes that there was necessarily a waste of resources. I disagree.

First, I find that the more pertinent question is, what was the total number of hours spent litigating this case. Here, as defendant points out, plaintiffs' counsel spent a total of 954.28 hours in this lawsuit while defendant spent a total of 579.2 hours, or 375.08 hours less than plaintiff. However, the number of hours spent by the defendant did not include the hours spent by CAP. I suspect that if the hours spent by CAP were included, the total number of hours spent by the State and CAP would be close to what plaintiff's counsel expended in this case. In light of this understatement, I find the difference in total hours not unreasonable.

Further, I find that the amount of time invested in the preparation of this case is reflected in the high quality of work presented to the court. Plaintiffs' counsels' arguments were extremely precise, well-written, and well-supported by facts and law. Plaintiffs' counsel presented very high qualityf briefing to the court.<sup>3</sup>

Next, after reviewing both parties' arguments, I reject defendant's objections to plaintiffs' use of out-of-state or other attorneys for depositions. For instance, I find that plaintiffs' counsel acted reasonably when they hired Fairbanks counsel to conduct the deposition of Ms. Scully, since the cost to plaintiffs was not significantly different than if their own counsel had conducted the deposition and because Ms. Bamberger, the "local" co-counsel, was thoroughly engaged with other "ninth-hour" depositions.

The State also objects to the cost of other counsel who defended a deposition in Vermont. Defendant suggests that plaintiffs' counsel should have appeared telephonically, as did defendant's counsel. Although defending a deposition telephonically may be a reasonable option, it is not the only <sup>3</sup> In making this finding, this court does not say that defendant's counsel's briefing was not of the same caliber. Indeed, the quality of the briefing in this lawsuit by all involved was of the highest degree.

reasonable option. Having counsel present at a deposition to consult with the deponent cannot be deemed an unreasonable expense.

Plaintiff's counsel should have been able to work faster

Defendant asserts that, because of the extensive and collective litigation and civil rights experience of plaintiffs' attorneys, the attorneys should not have required over 900 hours to prepare their case. This court rejects this final argument on the premise that the case presented a case of first impression for the State. Therefore, experience in federal law or the law of other jurisdictions did not have a direct bearing on Alaska's state law.

In conclusion, this court is not persuaded by defendant's objections to the reasonableness of plaintiffs' fees.

B. THE JOHNSON FACTORS

Johnson, supra, directs courts to consider twelve factors when determining the reasonableness of fees. Below, several of these factors are analyzed as they bear directly on the issue of reasonable fees in this case. Other factors are not relevant and were not addressed by the parties, and hence, I reach no conclusions as to them.<sup>4</sup>

1. The time and labor required

As stated above, this court finds that there was substantial

<sup>4</sup> Those factors are: the preclusion of other employment opportunities for counsel; whether the fee is fixed or contingent; time limitations that prioritize this work so that other work is delayed; the "undesirability" of the case; and the nature and the length of the professional relationship between the attorney and client.

time and labor required to properly prepare this complex case.

2. The novelty and difficulty of the questions

As already stated, this case presented a question of first impression in Alaska, and did not enjoy the benefit of Alaska cases substantially analogous to the issue presented.

3. The skill requisite to perform the legal service properly

As to this factor, the court is instructed to observe the attorney's work product, preparation and general ability before the court. As already noted, this court found plaintiffs' counsels' work to be of the highest quality, reflective of the time invested in the work. Further, this court found counsels' oral presentations to be of the same quality.

4. The customary fee

I find the attorneys' hourly rates, which range from $110 to $180 to be reasonable and customary.

5. The amount involved and the results obtained

Johnson directs that, "[i]f the decision corrects across-the-board discrimination affecting a large class" of claimants or plaintiffs, the attorney's fee award should reflect the relief granted. Johnson at 718. Although no exact figures are ascertainable, I find that a necessarily significant number of women have, or will be affected by this lawsuit.

6. The experience, reputation and ability of the attorneys

I have already dismissed defendant's assertions that, because of the counsels' significant experience their costs should be lower. But, this factor relates more to the hourly rate charged by the attorney. As already noted, I find the plaintiffs' attorneys' hourly rates reasonable here, particularly since it is recognized that experienced attorneys who specialize in civil rights cases may enjoy a higher rate of compensation than others. Johnson at 718.

7. Awards in similar cases

No argument was presented by the parties to the court related to this factor. However, this court notes that, in Valley Hospital, supra, a 1992 case, the court awarded approximately $110,000 in attorney's fees. The issue presented in that case was analogous to the one here. And, the award of injunctive relief and disposition by summary judgment in that case is also analogous. I find that, considering inflation, an award of $150,000 in 1998 approximates an award of $110,000 in 1992.

Conclusion

Application of the relevant Johnson factors leads to the conclusion that plaintiffs' attorneys' fees are reasonable. Indeed, none of the factors support a contrary conclusion.

CONCLUSION

After consideration of the parties' arguments and application of the factors set forth in Johnson, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED AND ADJUDGED THAT,

1. Plaintiffs are prevailing party, public interest litigants;
2. Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorney Fees is GRANTED; and

3. The State of Alaska shall pay plaintiffs the sum of $148,692.70 as full reasonable attorneys' fees and costs as approved by the Clerk of the Court, and an amended final judgment shall be entered in accordance herewith.<sup>5</sup>
